AMUSEMENTS.

"THE FORTUNE TELLER."

There are three comedians in the production of "The Fortune Teller," which Milton and Sargent Aborn are to present at the Grand in this city on Monday, Feb. 27. Presco, the ballet master and stage manager of the grand opera of Buda-Pesth, is to be played by James McElhenn, the well-known eccentric comedian. Boris, the gypsy, is to be interpreted by Herman Hirschberg, a Teutonic comedian, who played the part in the last production of the opera. The count is to be played by Phil Branson, who was last year with the "Bostonians." The balance of the organization is sold to be made up of singers of reputation, and the company is an exceptionally well balanced one, numbering sixty people. The production which the Messrs. Aborn are to present is one which was used by Alice Neilson when she so successfully presented this work. It is said to be the most elaborate that was given a comic opera in this country. Seats on sale this morning at Borland's.

Death of An Old and Honored Citizen.

Mr. James M. Hughes died at his home near Paris, on the morning of Thursday, the 23rd day of February, 1905, in the 80th year of his age. His death removes one of the oldest, best known and most highly respected citizens of Bourbon county. He was born in Nicholas county on the 20th day of April 1825, and when a young man was elected Circuit Clerk of Nicholas county. He subsequently moved to Millersburg, in this county, and engaged in the mercantile business with his nephew, Mr. John Smedley, under the firm name of Hughes & Smedley, and shortly afterwards, in 1886, he was elected Clerk of the Bourbon County Court, which office he held for a period of 20 years, when he voluntarily retired from the office with the reputation of having been one of the best and most popular officials the county ever had. He held the office for five consecutive terms, and so great was his personal popularity and the confidence of the public in his personal and official integrity that no candidate was ever able to wrest the nomination from him until the voluntarily relinquished the office after 20 years of service.

He was for many years President of the Citizens Bank of Paris, only retiring from that position about three years ago on account of his advanced age, but continued a director of the bank until his death. He was also, at the time of his death, Treasurer of the Paris Cemetery Company, which position he had held for many years.

He was a Mexican war veteran, having been a member of a Kentucky company which participated in that war, and he enjoyed relating stories of camp life in the city of Mexico.

Mr. Hughes was twice married. His first wife was Mrs. Sallie Holladay Kenney, of Millersburg. She died in 1885. His second wife was Mrs. Rebecca A. Roseberry Bayles, who survives with one daughter, Mrs. Jesse Hughes Miller, wife of Mr. Bruce Miller.

For more than a generation Mr. Hughes has been one of the best known and most popular citizens of Bourbon County. His acquaintance reached into all the families of the county, and it may truthfully be said of him that he had not an enemy in the world. He was broad and liberal in his opinions, affable and courteous to all with whom he came in contact and possessed, to an unusual degree, the power of making friends and holding them.

He was a man of sterling integrity of character and leaves to his family, besides a worldly competence, the heritage of a name without reproach.

The funeral will take place from the residence this (Friday) afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock. Services by Eld. J. S. Sweeney and Rev. Dr. Geo. Varden. Burial at Paris cemetery.

Active pall-bearers—Wm. Myall, W. E. Board, John Roseberry, T. H. Tarr, A. Smedley and Dr. Bruce Smith. Honorary—J. B. Kennedy, Henry Spears, Ed. D. Paton, J. T. Hinton, A. Shire and Dr. Silas Evans.

WAITING won't get you anything, come this week: Stone China covered sloop jars, 55c; dry cell electric batteries, 25c; decorated  $\frac{1}{2}$ -gal. milk pitchers, 15c; card mounted pictures, sizes 10x12, given free this week, with every 25c purchase. THE FAIR.

The Body of Elias Bishop Cremated.

As many friends have asked regarding the death of Elias Bishop, formerly of Paris, and son-in-law of Dr. Geo. Varden, we publish below a clipping from the Seattle Daily Times:

"E. Bradley Bishop, special representative of Schieffelin & Co., of New York, died in Portland, Or., on Sunday, and the body was cremated. During his residence in Seattle, Mr. Bishop became well known to the members of the medical profession in the Northwest, for, as the representative of a great drug house, he was brought into constant association with them.

"Mr. Bishop had gone to Portland upon a business trip, when he was seized with an attack of pneumonia. He was taken to the Samaritan Hospital, where he died.

"At the time of his death Mr. Bishop was 39 years of age. He was a native of Kentucky, but had lived in Seattle for about a year and a half. He leaves a wife and two children."

of Presence or Absence of Jap Torpedo Boats.

Declares the Russian Admiral Legitimately Believed His Squadron in Danger and Had a Right To Act As He Did.

Paris, Feb. 23.—A semi-official statement appeared relative to the work of the international commission which has been considering the North Sea incident. It is as follows:
"The Hull commission met in the ministry of foreign affairs, and again in the afternoon in order to proceed to a final examination of the report, recapitulating its conclusions. The report is rather long. The principal author is Adm. Von Spaun (Austrian), but all the members of the commission collaborated in drawing it up.
The commission gives no opinion on the question of the presence or absence of Japanese torpedo boats in the North Sea, declaring merely that the Russian admiral legitimately believed that his squadron was endangered and that he had the right, under the circumstances, to act as he did.
The commissioners refer to the Russian government's engagements to indemnify the victims of the deplorable incident."

British Comment.

London, Feb. 23.—A strong chord of indignation is sounded by the London daily newspapers over the semi-official statement relative to the decision of the North Sea commission giving to Russia the victory, but it is still hoped that the publication of the full text of the commission's report may modify the impression produced by the preliminary version, which is one of intense disappointment.

The Daily Mail goes so far as to declare that the decision has dealt a death blow to arbitration. Some of the newspapers blame the government strongly for ever consenting to subject such a matter to arbitration while some of the government organs find cold comfort in the fact that the country by doing so avoided war with Russia. No question is raised that the decision must be respected and Great Britain's share of the heavy costs will be ruefully paid; but it is held that the decision leaves the question of a neutral right on the sea in a deplorably unsatisfactory state, and creates a dangerous precedent.

STRUCK BY A SABER.

Unknown Man Attempted to Shake Hands With the President.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The president apparently is not annoyed by an incident which occurred in Philadelphia while he was driving from the Academy of Music to the armory, where he was the guest of the city troops at luncheon. Before the presidential party reached the city troop armory an unknown man dashed into the street and got within eight or ten feet of the president's carriage. There he was struck with the flat of a saber by one of the four troopers who surrounded the president's carriage, and checked by the force of the blow he staggered back and was lost sight of in the crowd. The man appeared to be a laborer about 45 years of age.
Those who witnessed the incident believe that he merely sought to shake hands with the president.

BATTLE WITH YAQUIS.

Two Score Were Killed and 167 Prisoners Taken.

La Colorado, Mex., Feb. 23.—The Mexican forces under Gen. Torres, numbering about 400, have killed two score of Yaquis and taken 167 prisoners in a two day's battle with the savages in the mountains east of this camp. When the fight ended Gen.
Luis Torres, with his staff, two-thirds of his force and the prisoners returned to La Colorado. The Mexican officers refused to make any statement of their own losses until they make official report, but private settlers of the force who took part in the fight say they were considerable, although there were sick and wounded among the returning troops.

A Japanese Loan.

Tokio, Feb. 23.—As a result of a conference with the bankers of Tokio, Yokohama, Osaka, Nagoya and Kyoto, the government has determined on a fourth domestic loan of 100,000,000 yen, to be issued at 96 per cent, and payable in seven years.

Wireless Telegraph System.

Colon, Feb. 23.—Orders have been received from Washington to resume the installation of a wireless telegraph system with the station on the spot originally selected. It is expected that the work will be completed in three months.

Found on the Dissecting Table.

St. Louis, Feb. 23.—The body of Harry G. Thompson, 20, who left the home of his father, George B. Thompson, at Atlanta, Ga., last May, was, through the father's efforts, found on the dissecting table in a medical college.

THE FIFTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

Washington, Feb. 18.—The senate passed the bill appropriating $9,940,- 000 for the District of Columbia and the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill carrying $2,156,000. The diplomatic bill received the attention of the senate for only 12 minutes and was passed without discussion. A special feature of the day was the acceptance of the statue of Frances E.
Willard, the distinguished temperance advocate, which has been placed in Statuary hall in the national capitol by the state of Illinois. The senate terminated its controversy with the house over the amendment constructing the provision in the Dingley law relative to the drawback on imported wheat by receding from the amendment inserted in the agricultural appropriation bill as it passed the senate.

In order to facilitate action at this session on the statehood bill the house passed a resolution sending that measure as amended by the senate directly into conference without an opportunity being afforded to debate it.
With the exception of Mr. McLachland (Cal.), who voted with the democrats, party lines were strictly drawn. After several hours' discussion the naval appropriation bill was laid aside and the house entered upon exercises appropriate to the reception and acceptance of the statue of Frances E. Willard, presented by the state of Illinois.
Washington, Feb. 21.—Whether the senate conferees on the statehood bill will represent the party that defeated joint statehood for Arizona and New Mexico, or the party that fought for the retention of that provision was debated at length in the senate, but no decision was reached. The usual manner is to name as conferees the two ranking majority members and the ranking minority member of the committee having the bill in charge. In the present case it was contended by Senator Gorman and Teller that the conferees, if so named, would not represent the sentiment for the bill as passed by the senate.

The house, after a seven hour session, passed the naval appropriation bill, carrying a total of $99,914,359.
The provision for two battleships, as reported by the committee on naval affairs, was retained. Both the majority and minority were badly divided over the proposition, at least 40 members of the latter going over to the republicans, while about an equal number of republicans voted in opposition.

Several important changes in the bill were made. The proposed increase of 1,200 men and officers for the marine corps was stricken out, as was also the provision authorizing the construction of a collier somewhere other than at the Mare Island navy yard in California. In order to do the work better an item of $175,000 was inserted for the proper equipment of the Mare Island yard. Several times during the debate the assassination of Grand Duke Serigus was referred to, the subject being brought up by Mr.
Baker (N. Y.), who condemned the action of President Roosevelt in sending a message of condolence to Russia expressing the sentiment that the government and American people viewed the act with abhorrence.

Washington, Feb. 22.—The senate passed the military academy appropriation bill and began consideration of the Indian appropriation bill. Early in the day, in response to a question, Mr. Elkins, chairman of the committee on inter-state commerce, expressed the opinion that it would be impossible to secure railroad rate legislation during the present session of congress. The senate took up the Isthmian canal bill.

The house passed the Philippine tariff bill, practically as it came from the committee, with but little discussion. There was no especial opposition to it, although amendments coming from the democratic side designed to put certain products on the free list met with defeat. An effort to prohibit the importation of opium into the islands except for medicinal purposes also failed. Immediately after the Philippine tariff bill was disposed of the house took up the river and harbor appropriation bill, but it was soon laid aside, and several measures were passed, the most important of which was the authorization given the secretary of war to return to the several states union and confederate battle flags.

AFTER THE BEEF TRUST.

A Special Federal Grand Jury at Chicago Ordered.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—A special federal grand jury venire was ordered and ten deputy United States marshals sent out with subpoenas summoning more than 25 members of the so-called beef trust. When the federal grand jury has been sworn in these men will be taken before it and an attempt will be made to indict persons restrained by Judge Grosscup's decision in the beef trust case, which was recently sustained by the United States supreme court. It is said this action is the outcome of orders from Washington.

TROUBLE INCREASING.

Shops Were Pillaged and Fighting Occurred in Many Parts of Baku.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 22.—Telegrams from Baku report that the disturbances there are increasing and that fighting has occurred in many parts of the town, that shops have been pil-laged and houses burned, and that the inhabitants are panic-stricken. Serious disturbances are also reported at Balakhany, eight miles north of Baku and troops have been summoned thither.

Training of Cadets.

Washington, Feb. 22.—Under instructions from the president a joint board of army and naval officers met at the army war college binding to consider and report upon the possible training of cadets at the United States military and naval academies and the question of swords and swordsmanship in the army and navy.

CRY OF WOLF! WOLF!

THRILLING STORY OF A CY-CLIST'S TERRIBLE RIDE.

Ignores Hasty, But Timely Warning, and Has to Ride for His Life
—Overtaken But Is Saved.

There were obvious signs of thunder when I set out to spend the evening with my friend at S—. A bright harvest moon shone down, lighting the road before me. Away, almost on the horizon, a heavy bank of clouds growled ominously and at frequent intervals.
Riding steadily, I was at length brought to a standstill by the road branching off in opposite directions.
My memory of the way up to this point had held me good. But now I hesitated, doubtful which of the two roads I should take. Whilst in this dilemma, I noticed the figure of a man approaching.
"Is this the road to S—?" I asked.
Without hesitating, the man hurried on.
I repeated my question. This time he heard, and, half turning, nodded his head.

"What is the matter?" I shouted.
"Wolf—escaped—from menagerie at G—" he gasped, in a terrified voice, and vanished round the corner.

Laughing to myself at his cowardice,
I mounted my machine and was soon gliding along the quiet lane. Strangely, up to the present, I had felt no alarm at the thought of a wolf roaming the country. But presently I began to experience a distinct sensation of nervousness.

By now a heavy bank of clouds obscured the moon. The darkness was intense. Still I rode on, making good progress, my path at times lit up by dazzling flashes of lightning.

Suddenly my lamp went out. Dis-mounting, I struck a match, and had just succeeded in kindling the wick, when a strange noise fell upon my ears. I listened intently.
The regular pit-pat of some approaching animal sounded clearly in the dark stillness. That instant, a flash of lightning lit up the road. I looked! I gasped! In the brilliant glare a gray-

"WOLF—ESCAPED—FROM MENAG-ERIE," HE GASPED.

brown object was visible, rushing headlong towards me.

"The wolf!" I shrieked, and, springing on my bicycle, fled, filled with mad panic.

How I kept my balance I cannot say.
The mortal dread of what would happen should I fall seemed to sap the strength from my limbs. Once I thought I had outdistanced the creature. I glanced behind, as another flash turned darkness into day.

Pit, pat, with red tongue lapping and swinging from side to side, I saw the brute, clinging tenaciously to the chase.
By now my knees ached intolerably, my breath came in sobs, and I felt as if my chest would burst. Then, just as despair had overwhelmed me, I saw the lights of a farmhouse not 20 yards ahead.

I pulled up abruptly. A moment later my fists beat wildly against the door. Suddenly a dark object bounded towards me. My mind reeled, and I collapsed on the doorstep, unconscious!

When I came to my senses I found myself seated in a big arm-chair. Bending over me, a broad smile overmantling his face, stood the master of the house.
"Where is the wolf?" I asked, feebly.
"Wolf!" he laughed. "Why, there is the terrible wolf, sleeping peacefully at your feet! It was our old sheep-dog all the time. He mistook you for my son.
Well, well, he gave you a little exercise!"

System to Prevent Railway Collisions.

An interesting change was recently made in the signaling system of New Zealand's railway, which, it is thought, will make collisions impossible. It is called the "tablet system," the essential point being that no engineer is allowed to leave a station without a tablet in his possession, and the machines are so made that it is impossible for two of the tablets to be out at the same time.
It is claimed by railroad experts that under this system two trains cannot be on the same section at once, so that the danger of collisions is entirely done away with.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

We are authorized to announce Robt.
L. Stout, of Woodford county, a candidate for the nomination of Circuit Judge in this district, composed of Bourbon, Scott, Franklin and Woodford counties, subject to the action of the Democratic primary April 5th.

We are authorized to announce Col. H.
P. Thomson as a candidate for State Senator from the 28th district composed of the counties of Bourbon, Clark and Montgomery, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

We are authorized to announce Chas.
Swift as a candidate for State Senator from the 28th district composed of Bourbon, Clark and Montgomery county, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

The Circuit Judgeship.

The committee of this Circuit Judge District, composed of the Chairmen of the Democratic Committees of Bourbon, Scott, Franklin and Woodford counties, has met and called a primary election for April 5th, to nominate a candidate to fill out Judge James E. Cantrill's unexpired term of Circuit Judge. While the call is for a primary, and seemingly fair enough, yet the time set practically eliminates all fairness in the matter and is but the work of very shrewd politicians, who are behind Judge Robert L. Stout, of Woodford, the Governor's appointee to the office. We want it understood that we have nothing personal against Judge Stout. He is a bright young man and said to be a good lawyer, and we know him to be a shrewd player in the game of politics, but we honestly believe that Bourbon county is entitled to this office and the people of this county should go after it in a body. Why sit still and allow two or three politicians to continually slap us in the face. The time is short, but with a determined effort we honestly believe we can win before the people. With only one candidate at this time from Bourbon we can at least let the Governor and would-be-Governor know that we are still in the district. Woodford county now has the United States Senator; Franklin, the Congressman and Commonwealth's Attorney; Scott, the Judge of the Court of Appeals, and poor old Bourbon what the little boy shot at—nothing. Bourbon has been good to candidates from Franklin, and surely Scott feels kindly to us, for it was Bourbon's vote that first put Judge James E. Cantrill, that noble old Democrat, into the office of Circuit Judge. This time is our chance, and it is to be hoped that an announcement will be made by a member of the Bourbon bar in the next few days that will go through this district with the shout of victory.
We have been turned down by the cunning politicians time and again, now let's try the people and see what they say about it.

Sauer's Good Things.

Just take a look at a few of the many good things we offer you for Saturday.

Fresh fish, oysters, cranberries, celery, fruits, Old Manse maple syrup and buckwheat flour.

WM. SAUER.

In this issue we announce Judge Robert L. Stout, of Woodford, as a candidate for Judge of this Circuit Court District to fill out the unexpired term of Judge James E. Cantrill. Judge Stout is a young man equipped in every way to fill the high office to which he aspires. He is a pleasant, courteous gentleman and ranks with the very best of lawyers.

DEATHS.

Joseph York, aged 65 years, for years a prosperous shoe merchant of this city, died in Cincinnati, Tuesday, from burns received by falling on a stove. Joe York was well-known here and had moved to Cincinnati from this place a number of years ago. He was an eccentric man and had for several years been occupying one room on Court street, Cincinnati, making it his workshop, living and sleeping quarters. He was found on the floor of his room unconscious, suffering from severe burns. He afterwards became conscious and stated he had fallen on his stove Saturday night. He was a mystery to the Cincinnati people, never telling them anything in regard to himself or family, whom he had left some time ago.

He is survived by his wife, who was a daughter of the late Pat O'Brien, of this city, by his first wife, and two daughters, Mrs. Dudley Lawrence, of Lexington, and Mrs. J. B. McKee, of Avondale, O.

Squire John Howard, aged 78 years, died Tuesday, at home of his son-in-law, Mr. George Redmon, near Ruddells Mills, of pneumonia. Squire Howard for a number of years was an honored member of the Bourbon Fiscal Court, and was highly respected and esteemed by his neighbors and a large circle of friends. He had been making his home with his daughter, Mrs. George Redmon, for some time.
Funeral services were held at the residence, yesterday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, by Rev. Chas. Thompson, of Lexington. Burial at Paris cemetery.
He is survived by three children,
Mrs. George Redmon, of this county, Victor Howard, of Pawnee City, O. T., and Frank Howard, of Georgetown.

Miss Pearl Hammond, who last appeared here this season with the Adelaide Thurston Company, died at a hospital at Hartford, Conn., Tuesday. Miss Hammond was well and favorably known in Paris, being a niece of Mrs. J. Ray McCann and an adopted daughter of her husband, having spent several summers here with them.

A Success As a Lecturer.

Mr. Yutaki Minachuchi, who married Miss Ollie Buckner, of this county, a few nights ago delivered a lecture at Asheville, N. C., on "Japan," and the Asheville papers give very favorable comment. One said: "The speaker surprised his audience with a sample of eloquence seldom heard in this city. He handled his subject as only a trained scholar of the 'Flowery Kingdom' could have done."

Was a Success.

The sixth annual Tobacco Fair at Maysville this week was a success. The highest prices paid were ninety cents per pound for lugs.

W. ED. TUCKER, our progressive and up-to-date merchant, has just returned from a most satisfactory trip to the New York markets, and has selected a complete and exclusive stock of silks, dress goods, ribbons, neckwear, novelties, &c., that can not be surpassed in style and quality. Mr. Tucker states that this is the largest stock he has ever purchased. Convince yourself by calling early and see the many new things on display.

Social Event At Odd Fellows' Hall.

On next Monday evening, February 27, the doors of Odd Fellows' Hall will be open at 7:30 o'clock for a social evening of rest and recreation, to be given under the auspices of Bourbon Lodge, No. 23, I. O. O. F., to its members and friends, at which will appear one of the foremost impersonators of the day, Newton Beers. Mr. Beers holds a national reputation as an entertainer. His dramatic recital in monologue of the play "David and Jonathan" will be especially interesting. He comes highly recommended, not only by the officers of the Grand Lodges of many States, but by a host of Subordinate Lodges as well. This will be an event of special interest to members of I. O. O. F., and is intended for their lady friends as well as for the general public. Admission, 25c.

Killed By F. & C. Train.

Albert Williams, colored, of Claysville, was struck by the east-bound freight train on the F. & C. Railway on the trestle near the Chas. Hall farm, this side of Georgetown, Monday afternoon, and killed. The negro was seen by the train men and every effort made to stop the train. He first attempted to lie down between the ties, then stood straight up and seemed about to jump when struck. He must have been paralyzed with fright, as the trestle is only about ten feet high and he could have easily gotten off. He was picked up and taken to Georgetown, where he died, being identified by Lina Breckinridge, of this city, his sister. Albert was at one time a valuable servant, being a number one cook and man about the house, but of late years had been demoted. He had been employed in the homes of a number of our leading families.

Results of Invoice.

We have finished our invoice and in so doing we have selected all of odd suits in our boys' and children's department and put them in two lots:

Lot A—There are 75 children's suits, ages 5 to 15 years.

Lot B—There are 54 suits, ages 14 to 20 years.

We have cut the price on the above lots right half in two. It's folly to compel your children to try and worry through the winter with the old suit, as a new one can be had at such a paltry sum. If you have boys and are tactful you should buy several suits of them.

$3.00 Suits, now.....$1.50

4.00 Suits, now.....2.00

5.00 Suits, now.....2.50

The pants are worth the price of the suit.

An Elegant Entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos Henry Clay, Sr., held a reception yesterday afternoon at their beautiful colonial city home, on Pleasant street, in honor of the Jimima Johnson Chapter, D. A. R. Besides the members of the Chapter there were present a number of invited friends. It was one of the social events of the season, and but another of the elegant entertainments this hospitable couple are noted for. Mr. and Mrs. Clay were in the receiving line and welcomed each guest in their usual cordial manner. Mrs. Clay was gowned in a handsome gray crepe de chene, old point lace, with coral ornaments, and no more stately or queenly looking hostess ever greeted her guests. The handsome home with the elegant furnishings of this tasteful lady will never look more beautiful than on this occasion, decorated throughout with la France roses and carnations from her own green house. In the dining room and library two round tables were set, sparkling from end to end with the most exquisite cut glass dishes, and from which was served a sumptuous feast fit for kings and queens. During the entire afternoon sweet strains of music floated through the spacious walls from a large and elegant Regina music box. All in all it was a most pleasing and delightful afternoon for the honored guests.

SHOES AT COST.—In order to make room for spring goods I have put in my show window a big line of men's shoes that I will sell at less than cost rather than carry them over. Patent kid, velour and box calf in odd sizes that are bargains. Call early.

Exercises at City School.

About two hundred of our citizens attended the special exercises held at our City School, Wednesday morning, in celebration of Washington's birthday. Prof. J. A. Sharon, the efficient and popular Superintendent, opened the exercises with a short and appropriate address. Then two patriotic songs, one by the school "Hail Columbia," the other by the Third Grade, "Salute the Flag," were sung. Rev. J. L. Clark, of the M. E. Church, then delivered an address on "George Washington," which was thorough, showing the father of our country to have been a true man, statesman, soldier and Christian.

After another song, "Red, White and Blue," Judge Denis Dundon gave a most excellent talk on the "Public School System," urging the pupils to take advantage of the golden opportunities now set before them by the present system. "Oh, Gloria" was then sung, and Mr. F. L. McChesney delighted the audience with a few impromptu remarks, not knowing that he would be called on.

The most interesting exercises were closed with "America." The patriotic songs were an entertaining feature of the occasion and Miss Julia O'Brien deserves much praise for the training of the children in this department.

DUST AND ASHES.

For the touch of your cool white hand
And slim,
For the brush of your bronze-gold hair Across my lips, what wouldn't I give?
What would I? The world is fair,
The slopes are green and the bird's song
Thrills
As sweet as it used to do;
But it isn't as sweet as it was to me
In the days when I walked with you.

And never in field or glen or hill,
Or down by the bayou's brink,
Is the glamour the world once held for me.
The cattle wend down to drink,
And the jasmine nods as if drunk with dew,
And the clover perfume blows
As faint and far and sweet as then,
When the doors of the night unclose.

And I know that the world is the beautiful thing
That it used to be. Last night
I met a maid and a youth afar
In the afterglow, so light
I stepped aside that they saw me not,
Enamored they passed me by,
And just for a moment the old light played Transforming the sea and sky.

And so as I know that the world's the same
I wish it may still exist,
But the glamour and thrill that it held me in
Are gone, and the lips I kissed
I may kiss no more. And I walk alone
Where the perfumed nightwinds weep,
And I would I might give all the wide wide world
For one more kiss—and sleep.
—J. M. Lewis, in Houston Post.

CHAPTER IX.—CONTINUED.

For several days after his capture it had been Benton's belief that Paul was concealed in the room Rosalie declared hers at the Henry house—the room sacred to her stricken brother—and not until after their coming to Charlottesville was he undeceived. There, one afternoon, the week before he went away, the young confederate was moved to refer to the matter mainly by seeing that it was a subject of which Benton fought shy.

"I had been with Miss Chilton and poor Jack some hours that morning," said he, "for the guard never came in the front part of the house, but she had ordered me to go and get some sleep in the afternoon, it having been fully determined that I should make the attempt to escape that night. Lying there in a sort of cat nap toward five o'clock, I heard the soldiers speak your name and could not resist the longing to see you. Then when you turned back I knew you had come to search and had plenty of time to flatten out between the joists and pull my section of my nose with your spurred boot-heel, Fred, and I never winced."

So that ghost was laid, at least as far as Rosalie was concerned. But how about the other—the far more significant and now mysterious freak of clothing herself in Paul's uniform and slipping through the darkness of night to the stone house? For whose sake had she so carefully disguised, yet recklessly exposed herself? Not even her father had been told as yet. He had so confided to Benton only a day or two after Paul's departure, and now, with her growing shyness, aversion, or whatever it might be toward him, little likelihood was there, thought Benton, of his learning the secret from her lips, and that, too, when he was beginning to feel that he must know.

Every day for hours he could pace up and down the pretty, home-like garden, listening to the low chatter in the arbor, or the soft, bubbling laughter when "Jack's girls" were there. Of course the story of all his kindness to the doctor had been told, otherwise his presence would have been insupportable. But some one had said he was very handsome, very silent, very interesting, and that he couldn't keep his big blue eyes off Rosalie, and so there was much curiosity mingling with the stately little curtsies each in turn accorded him.

This April evening as he sat at the window awaiting the doctor's coming to look at his arm before tea-time, his eyes were attracted by the sight of a certain broad-brimmed drab felt hat that he had noted more than once before that day, passing along the fence at the side of the house where the hedge was thick and high. Now Fred Benton saw distinctly much of the form and some of the face beneath it, and face and form were those of a young and slender girl. She lifted up her eyes and looked full at the captive Yankee; then stopped short, glanced hastily about her; took from the bosom of her gown a little white note; held it high that he should see it; turned and walked back to the gateway. One moment she held her note aloft again, then lowered her hand as though working vigorously at the bricks, and when a second time she uplifted the hand the note was gone. Another moment and—so was she. Obviously, however, that girl wished him to mark the spot, then come down and get that note.

Not until the following morning came there opportunity. Then, while Jack in his latticed, vine-covered arbor was listening to the chatter of the new relic of his fair bodyguard, Benton stepped quickly to the gateway, and, after brief search, hauled aside a loose brick or two and found a tiny billet folded three-cornered, that when opened said:

"Be alert. Orders coming send you to Libby. Watch every morning and evening for further warning. Escape possible."

CHAPTER X.

LIBBY OR LIBERTY.

Then came three days of rain. And while McClellan's men were wallowing in the mud of the lower peninsula, held by the elements, not by the enemy—for Magruder's little force at Yorktown could not have stopped two divisions when led by a later day general of the Army of the Potomac—here about Charlottesville the wooded heights were draped in filmy mist, the mountain streams ran bank full, and Jack Chilton's bodyguard came on duty with blooming, rain-kissed cheeks.

Rosalie, secretly disturbed about her captive, as the girls called him, professed to think Mr. Benton ought to be glad to come downstairs and watch Brother Jack being worshipped—"It ought to make any man better to see how Virginia girls honor a Virginia soldier stricken while battling for his native state." Bull Run victims were few and far between now—either were they dead or again on duty—and Virginia girls by the hundred were longing to lavish smiles and sweetness and soothing potions, all in one, on Virginia lads shot or sabered in their defense. Time was soon, and far too soon, to come when every house and every room should be filled with the sore stricken, and there could be nowhere near enough girls to go around; but just now, in April, Charlottesville had but three wounded Southerners and one "Yank," and to the foremost of these Southerners all but a corps d'élite of Miss Chilton's choosing were denied admission. As to the Yank, no one of their number dare let another know how gladly would her charity have been extended—even to him. Of course, however, that was merely through curiosity.

No. Fred Benton was chafing, restless and unhappy, and even now that Paul was gone, again suffering the pangs of jealousy. A tall confederate officer, a very distinguished looking major of the staff, had called thrice in two days, and had had long conversation with the little lady of the house—one, in fact, behind closed doors after Jack had been "toted" to his room. Fred heard the colored house of commons discussing the pros and cons as to that indication, and in like manner ascertained that the officer was Maj. Lounsberry—long a resident of Albemarle and now of the staff—the inspector's department of the confederate army, and Fred could have sworn his pretty jailor was in tears when she came hurrying up from one interview. Morning and evening both had he watched for the return of the lady of the broad-brimmed felt, but the rain or something had been too much for her, and she failed to reappear. Maj. Lounsberry's deep voice, however, was heard in the broad lower hall three hours after his long afternoon interview with Miss Chilton, and the doctor came briskly forth from his study to greet and welcome the distinguished representative of the war office—the son of an old familiar friend. There was good news from Yorktown, it seems, and small Pomp brought it in with a little pitcher of cool buttermilk and some "corn pone" for Marse Benton—"De Yankees done got licked agin down by Yorktown."

"Marse Lounsberry" had so told the doctor, and Fred went down to Jack's room, his arm still slung, to wish him good-night and learn what he knew. Rosalie departed and left them as the doctor, and it happened that as the doctor was ushering his martial visitor from his study to the door full 15 minutes later, and long before Benton's usual hour for retiring, the door to Jack's room opened and the Yankee lieutenant came forth, looking very tall, erect and by no means broken down.

The doctor gave a start—an unmistakable glance of warning. A crouching bundle of femininity near the head of the stairs, out of Lounsberry's sight but plainly in Benton's view, frantically signalled with both impetuous hands—with wild eyes and wide-opening mouth gasping dismay—the imperative order to go back at once, but obtusely Benton stood his ground and faced, half defiantly, this new visitor, who in turn stopped short and calmly, even somewhat insolently, surveyed him. The major was the first to speak.

"Lieut. Benton, I presume," said he "and looking vastly better than I had been led to—hope." How near he there came to saying "believe!"

"Looking quite well, my dear major," hastily interposed the doctor, "yet, I assure you, but the ghost of the fine young fellow who rescued me that night at Centerville. It will be months before he can handle a sabre again."

"How about a pen?" asked Lounsberry, significantly, his eyes burning into Benton's gaze as though striving to read his innermost thoughts.

"Mr. Benton has certainly managed to write three home letters—left-handed," answered Dr. Chilton, speaking for his captive guest, yet glancing nervously toward him. "They were duly forwarded to Richmond to be censored. Was it there you saw them, Maj. Lounsberry?"

"I had reference to possibilities, doctor, though I am not acquainted with the lieutenant's left hand-writing. It would be injudicious, for instance, not to say ungrateful to those who have shielded him, were he to answer the letter he found at the old side gate of the garden, Monday evening!"

The hot blood leaped to Benton's face. Lounsberry had spoken with the cool deliberation of one absolutely sure of his ground. The doctor turned and stood gazing at his guest as though expecting him promptly to deny the imputation. From the stairway came the sound of faint rustle as though Rosalie shrank still further away, and Benton felt, rather than saw that her eyes were fixed upon him in mingled scrutiny and indignation. The silence was painful and Benton broke it.

"There was nothing new in the note, doctor," said he, purposely ignoring the staff officer. "It was to tell me—that I already suspected and, since this gentleman's arrival, have felt sure of—that I was to be sent to Richmond. Do not let it worry you. I have been preparing for it, and now I am quite ready to go."

For the life of him as the sentence closed he could not avoid shooting one swift glance at the stairway to note the effect of his words. The major saw, turned and finding that from where he stood the landing and stairway were hidden from view, stepped quickly forward. Benton instantly did the same, and almost breast to breast they met there in the middle of the room—the blue and the gray—the fire flashing in the eyes of each. There was the sound of whisking drapery, a soft swish along stair and balcony rail, and in an instant Rosalie had darted to the landing and out of sight. A half smile, contemptuous and cutting, played about the confederate's lips. He gave no sign whatever that he had heard. He addressed himself to Benton:

"I presume you have burned that note, sir, and therefore have nothing with which to back your statement, but I take you at your word. You are ready to go, you say; be ready to start then at six in the morning."

"My dear major!" broke in Dr. Chilton. "Surely you—"

"Those are my orders, doctor. I have no volition," answered Lounsberry, coldly. "And now if I may say adieu to Jack I'll leave you to such preparation as may be necessary. The guard will call for Mr. Benton at six. I go myself to Gordonsville to-night."

With that Maj. Lounsberry turned haughtily away, as though the possibility of further talk with a federal prisoner was something intolerable. The doctor, stunned and silent, looked helplessly from one to the other, and again it was Benton who spoke a reassuring word. Cordially he held forth his one free hand.

"It's all right, doctor," said he. "You and Miss Chilton have pulled me round famously. I can stand Libby diet now just as well as anybody, and I'm betting on speedy exchanges. Then—our fellows will be doing something now," he added, with significant smile.

"Who knows but they may gather in game as big as that!" with a laughing nod toward the resplendent major. "Or, is he, like so many of our staff, only for duty at the rear?" And Benton meant that Lounsberry should hear, and hear he did and flushed red under the taunt.

"Do not judge our methods by the little you know of yours, Mr. Benton," he retorted, albeit with admirable self-control. Then, as though again determined to ignore the northerner, "may I be permitted a word with Lieut. Chilton, doctor?" a question which seemed to recall the doctor to himself and left Benton to his own devices. Without another glance at the unwelcome visitor, the latter turned and ascended the stairs to the second story, and there, in the dim light of a night lamp, by the eastward window, stood the girl he longed to see and speak with, and she who had avoided, now came half timidly forward as though to meet him.

From the neighborhood of her aunt's door and her own, and close to the westward windows Rosalie Chilton silently led her captive soldier, and then turned, her face pale and sorrow-stricken, her great dark eyes filling with unshed tears.

"I have a confession to make, Mr. Benton," said she, at length. "Do you think—it's easy for a girl to say—she's glad to find that she was wrong?"

"Something has seemed to me very wrong of late," answered Benton, "so much so I was glad to get away on any terms, even to Libby. For what have I been punished?"

"I shall tell you—frankly," she answered, standing with downcast eyes before him, her white hands loosely clasping. "Do you know, I thought—I heard—that you were plotting with people outside to escape, and, father being responsible for you, it seemed ungrateful—indeed dishonorable—"

"But what on earth have I said or done to warrant the belief? I have talked with no one, communicated with no one, except that, after I had noted your cold and distant manner, there came this little unsigned note, saying that I was to be sent to Richmond. I have never answered it. I haven't an idea who sent it."

"But the note—" and now she looked up eagerly, "you have it—still?"

"Burned it to ashes the hour it came," he answered.

"But you saw who brought it—or who left it?"

"I saw—" he impulsively began, then stopped short. What right had he, a union soldier, to give information against some possible union lover in their midst, one who was seeking to be of service to him at that?"

"Oh, you needn't say!" cried Miss Chilton, with a curl of her lip. "We know—at least I know—the girl! What we heard, or at least I heard, a week ago was that you—that they, that—oh, I can't explain—I can't go on!" she said, and now burning blushes, to his amazement, suffused her face and she covered it with her hands.

Then voices were heard below stairs—the doctor showing the major from Jack's room to the door, ceremonious and courteously even when aggrieved.

"He will wish to see me—perhaps you, too—at once," suddenly exclaimed Miss Chilton, starting impulsively forward. "I just want to know that—that what I now believe is true, and to be able to say so confidently to father and perhaps to—to others. You had not thought of trying to escape so long as you were with us?" And for an instant the dark, glorious eyes looked full into his face, then fell before the intensity of his.

"On my word, Miss Chilton—no!"

"Then—then," she vehemently cried, "I don't care how soon you do try—now!" and with that she darted past him to her own room and presently the doctor's slow step was heard ascending the stairs.

It was late that night and the moon had dipped beyond the Blue Ridge when, after a family talk in Jack's room, they separated. Not another chance had Benton to speak to Rosalie, but for good and sufficient reason he had found her actions of most unusual interest. Pale and silent, absorbed in thought, she had taken little part in the conference. Twice she stole softly to the window, drew aside the curtain and peered through the outer darkness; then, while her father was earnestly talking, she seated herself close to the curtains, and Benton, watching her with devouring eyes, saw that she was listening intently for sounds, signals, something from without and paying little heed to what was said within. Then, he could not be mistaken, there came a low tap, tap on the pane. Rosalie quickly, silently drew the shade aside enough to enable her to give one answering tap, and a moment later she stole quietly out of the room, while the doctor was still talking, and, when she returned nearly half an hour later, there were drops of water on her rippling hair.

By this time between the Chiltons, father and son, it had been determined that every influence should at once be brought to bear at Richmond to bring about Benton's exchange—Fred himself agreeing to write urgent letters to friends in front of Washington. Already quite a number of officers and men had been returned from Libby, the first small boat-load having gone to the capital and been welcomed by the president himself before the winter's snows were swept entirely from the Virginia mountains. "Just one thing I fear," said the doctor, "that the same influence that dogged you here and led to the order for your delivery there, may pursue you at Richmond."

"And will you tell me what that is and why it should be so bitter?" asked Benton.

The doctor glanced uncertainly at the thinned face, flushing faintly even through the pallor of this long confinement, then turned to Rosalie. Quickly she again left her chair, hurried to the window and threw open the curtain as though to look forth into the night where all was apparently dark as Erebus.

"It is a family—jah, suh. I hardly understand it myself. But I'm bound to say that Maj. Lounsberry has forfeited any claim he may have had upon my friendship. Now I must look to that bandage again before you retiah, suh." And thus closed the conference.

Not half an hour later young Pomp was nervously fidgeting about the room, on the customary plea of helping Marse Benton undress, when he rolled his big eyes thrice to the west window and finally said, with a chuckle:

"Marse Jack never thought nuthin' of swingin' out of that window when dis was his room 'or de wah."

"Rather a high jump for a heavy man," suggested Benton, wondering to what this conversation might lead.

"Lawd, Marse Benton, you done 'ot got de lightnin' raw!"

Stepping to the window the lieutenant peered forth into the moist and windy night. Putting forth his hand he could feel, just to the left of the window, the stout, thick iron rod that Pomp had described.

Slowly, thoughtfully he closed the shade and returned to the dressing-table where stood the single candle, Pomp had vanished, but there, pinned to the cushion was the mate to the strange little billet he had found at the gate. Even the handwriting was the same:

"Horses, guide and everything you need waiting back of the barn. Lose not a moment! Choose between the mountains for a day or two or Libby for the rest of the war. Burn this, too."

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

PERSONALITY OF THE RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR.

MAN OF PECULIAR RESERVE

Indians' Needs and Abilities—Geronimo Coming to Capitol to See Great White Father—Gentleman from South Carolina.

WASHINGTON.—The Count Cassini still holds the center of the diplomatic stage in Washington. Despite the reverses and troubles of the Muscovite government, its representative in Washington preserves his imperturbability and no one would guess from his placid exterior that everything was not lovely and promising at home. The count is dean of the diplomatic corps, a position he has occupied since the death of the late Lord Pauncefote, the British ambassador, and he maintains that position with dignity and fills all the requirements, social and otherwise, in perfect style. He is deferred to by other diplomats in matters involving the etiquette of the corps, and when concerted action is necessary in any public function Count Cassini exercises his prerogatives and is accorded the respect and deference of his colleagues.

The nearest the count has come to exhibiting uneasiness or a disturbed feeling was when a newspaper correspondent recently attributed to a high Russian official in this city expressions regarding the St. Petersburg riots and the internal affairs of Russia that virtually amounted to treason. Ordinarily impervious to newspaper comment and criticism, Count Cassini could not stand for this, and he immediately characterized the reported interview as false. The newspaper correspondent retorted by offering to publish the name of his informant if Count Cassini would give him written permission to do so. The Russian ambassador immediately accepted the challenge and sent a written authorization to the newspaper correspondent and asked that the name be published. This the latter did not do, whereupon Count Cassini again appeared in the public prints, characterizing the correspondent's statement as false and the correspondent himself as a falsifier. The language used was hardly diplomatic, but it failed to reveal the identity of the high Russian official whom the correspondent represented as uttering the treason. The count declared that the correspondent never had any such interview, and there the matter rests.

Count Cassini's Imperturbability. An illustration of Count Cassini's self-possession and command of nerve, it is related that when the news of the fall of Port Arthur first reached him he looked up, allowed the monarch to drop out of his eye and said: "It is very regrettable." As Port Arthur was the ambassador's special pet, he having secured its lease from the Chinese government for Russia, the place being rechristened Port Arthur in honor of himself, his splendid self-control can be better appreciated.

A gentleman recently had another illustration of the count's self-possession. He called at the embassy to see the ambassador, and found the latter taking an afternoon's exercise by walking around the triangle on which the embassy is located. The count invited him to join in the walk, and they were followed by an immense dog, a sort of cross between an Italian greyhound and a Russian stag hound. The animal is so thin and gaunt that it is known in the neighborhood as the "spook" dog. It is a favorite of the count and goes by the name of "Tristan." On this particular occasion a lady was passing by the embassy, followed by a long-haired poodle. Tristan looked at the little animal, made one leap, grabbed it by the back of the neck and threw it about 20 feet away. The poodle yelped and squealed and the lady screamed. Again Tristan leaped on the little animal and tossed it in the air, causing more screams from the lady and yelps from the poodle.

Quite a commotion resulted, several passers-by stopping to see what was the matter, while the lady was almost in hysterics. Count Cassini continued his stroll, chatting with his visitor, but on the second attack of his "spook" hound he turned leisurely, dropped his monocle and in a low, even tone said: "Tristan, Tristan, you must not do that," and resumed his walk.

Opinions of New Indian Commissioner. President Roosevelt's new Indian commissioner, Francis E. Leupp, has ideas of his own regarding the education of Indian children and youths. At various times Mr. Leupp has visited Indian reservations and studied the Indian man at close range on missions for the government, and he has learned much of their characteristics, and now that he has assumed charge of these wards of the nation, he is able to institute plans and reforms which he is convinced will be to their benefit.

Mr. Leupp does not believe in the higher education of the Indians. He conceives that about all the red children are capable of absorbing in the way of education are the simple branches taught in the day schools. When it comes to reservation boarding schools and Indian schools in the east, he thinks a very careful selection should be made of the pupils who are to attend them.

One plan the Indian commissioner has in mind for the development of the Indian boys at Carlisle school, Pennsylvania, is to pay particular attention to their military training and to teach them trades that would be useful to them in the army. They should be taught discipline and obedience to orders, and he believes that with the proper training they will make very useful soldiers. After they have served a number of years in the army they will be better fitted to take up some trade in civil life, like blacksmithing, carpentering, tailoring, and the like, which they learned in the Indian school and followed in the army. One profession that he advises for the Indian girls is that of trained nurse. The Indian by nature is unsympathetic, and a trained nurse from an Indian school would be more likely to carry out orders of the physicians and not be affected by the sufferings or whims of patients than their white sisters.

Features of Inaugural Parade.

N many ways the inauguration of President Roosevelt on the 4th of March will be the most unique ever held in Washington. The parade that is being arranged will include more varieties of organizations than any that has ever passed along Pennsylvania avenue. One striking feature will be the turnout of Indians. The old Apache chief, Geronimo, who kept the United States army on the go for so many years in the southwest and who is to-day a nominal prisoner of the government, will be present and will head a band of well-known Indians. The inauguration committee has donated a sufficient sum of money to bring these Indians to Washington, where they will be furnished with genuine Indian ponies to ride in the parade. Following this band of Indian chiefs will be a battalion of Indian cadets from the Carlisle school.

It is said that old Geronimo is anxious to come to Washington and see the Great White Father. He long ago gave up any idea of fighting the whites. When he was taken to the Omaha exposition in 1898 as a prisoner from Fort Sill, Indian territory, he looked at the throngs of visitors, shook his head and said: "Too many whites, too many whites. Me no fight any more." It was there that he met Gen. Miles for the first time since that gallant officer had captured him and his band after years of fighting.

Another feature of the inaugural parade will be the president's Rough Rider escort. If the weather is fine this escort will appear in blue shirts, khaki trousers, campaign hats, blue polka-dot handkerchiefs around their necks, and their coats strapped behind them on their saddles. This will be a wonderful contrast to the glittering troops of cavalry that have always acted as escorts of honor to the president. There will be regular troops, infantry, cavalry, artillery, marines, bluejackets and sailors, state militia and a dozen or more civic organizations in line to complete the parade.

The Real Senator Tillman. Ben Tillman, the fiery, eloquent senator from South Carolina, is again the victim of a serious throat affection, and his friends are greatly worried about his condition. This product of the Palmetto state has made a unique place for himself in public life. Few men ever came to Washington with greater prejudices against him than did Mr. Tillman. To-day he has as many friends in the United States senate as any other member of that body. He has offended every rule of the senate and has shocked the dignified senators many a time and oft, and has even engaged in fistfights within the sacred precincts of the senate chamber. Despite all this his honesty and his willingness to give and take in a fair fight on the floor have won him respect and affection. He is not a lawyer, but has proven a tough antagonist for some of the best lawyers on the floor and has gained their admiration.

The senator is a man of domestic tastes, and he has won the hearts of many of his colleagues by inviting them to his house to partake of genuine southern hospitality. He has an old South Carolina negress as a cook, and the dinners he gives to his senatorial friends are appreciated above the best banquets served in the city. Nowhere else do they get three-year-old Smithfield ham, pure hominy, South Carolina rice, corn bread and a multitude of southern delicacies in the profusion and perfection that they find on Senator Tillman's table. These good things are washed down by a soft, pleasant native wine made from the scuppernon grape. It is at his table and in his home that the senator is seen at his best. He is an exceedingly well read man and chuck full of poetry and sentiments. His "pitchfork" is only for spectacular use, and those who know him best know him for a warm-hearted, hospitable gentleman.

PREACHER USES BIG TYPE.

Minister in Missouri Advertisises His Revival in Daily Papers—Believes in Printer's Ink.

Mexico, Mo.—Rev. C. C. Seelman, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, of this city, is a believer in the liberal use of printer's ink, even in matters of such import as the saving of souls. He is carrying a series of display advertisements in the local daily papers, calling attention to revival meetings now in progress.

One of his advertisements, set across the top of the first page in the big type, reads:

"Never mind the weather, the Lord has charge of that. Wrap up and come right on to the revival meetings at the Promenade Street Methodist church and God will bless you and make you a blessing to some one else."

"A large chorus choir in charge of Mr. Stout. Preaching daily—2:30 p. m., by Rev. H. E. Stout; 7:15 p. m. by Rev. C. C. Seelman. Come to-night. Bring a friend."

Another of the divine's efforts to attract larger congregations is: "A good investment, yielding profits in two worlds. Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come. Revival meetings at the Methodist church daily; 2:30 p. m., sermon by H. E. Stout; 7:15 p. m., sermon by C. C. Seelman. Chorus led by H. E. Stout. Meetings all next week. Come and bring a friend."

Large congregations are being attracted to the meetings and there is much interest.

NEW TRAP FOR CRIMINALS.

British Scientist Invents Powder That Will Reveal Invisible Finger Marks.

London.—The claim is made that the latest enemy of the criminal is an infallible, and what may be termed invisible witness. It is, as a matter of fact, the development of the fingerprint system, due to the researches of Dr. J. G. Garson, who, at a meeting of the Medico-Legal society, gave an interesting demonstration of his system. Although invisible to the eye, fingerprints on almost every conceivable object can, by Dr. Garson's invention, be developed as though on a photographic plate.

Dr. Garson took an ordinary sheet of note paper and requested Sir William Collins to lay his fingers upon it for a moment. The closest scrutiny failed to reveal any marks left on the paper. Dr. Garson then sprinkled a mysterious powder upon the paper, blew it off and the imprint of Sir William's fingers stood distinctly revealed.

Sir William again placed his fingers upon the ebony edge of a writing desk before him. A different kind of powder was applied. Again a perfect reproduction of the finger markings followed.

Denounces Noted Authors. "Shakespeare's works teem with unwholesome stuff and are unfit for a place in any Christian library," said Rev. Dr. G. C. Cromer, pastor, of Louisville, Ky., the other day. "Lord Byron and Robert Burns were bad men, and their writings are harmful," he continued, and plunged copies of the writings of the men into a stove in his church before his congregation.

Helps a Little. The janitor of a school building in Chicago is surreptitiously giving the teachers lessons in china painting. This is not as important as carrying his election division, remarks the Philadelphia North American, but it is thrifty.

His Favorite Instrument. "The tout ensemble of that orchestra is remarkably good," remarked Mr. Newrich, enthusiastically. "I like to watch the fellow that plays it slide it back and forth—looks as if he was swallerin' it,"—(level-land Leader).

The New England $20-a-week clerk who won a $1,500 automobile in a raffle wishes to keep and maintain the machine, but cannot, and asks about the inequalities of fortune. He seems to be insensible to good fortune, as there are myriads of clerks who never win automobiles.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Quick Cure of Rheumatism by Dodd's Kidney Pills—How They Saved the Shop of a Kansas Blacksmith—Cure Was Permanent Too.

Goodland, Kan., Feb. 20th.—(Special) —So quick and complete was the cure of N. E. Albertson, a local blacksmith, that it almost seems like a miracle. He had rheumatism so bad he feared he would have to give up his shop. One box of Dodd's Kidney Pills drove away all the pains and they have never returned. "Speaking of my cure, Mr. Albertson says: 'I had rheumatism in my shoulders and arms for years. Part of the time it was so bad I could not sleep at night. My arm hurt so that it seemed I would have to give up my blacksmith shop. I went to the drug store and bought one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and took them. I have not had the rheumatism since. A great many of the neighbors are using Dodd's Kidney Pills since they saw how they cured me.'"

Help for Women Facing Through Change of Life

Providence has allotted us each at least seventy years in which to fulfill our mission in life, and it is generally our own fault if we die prematurely.

Mrs. Mary Koehne

Nervous exhaustion invites disease. This statement is the positive truth.

When everything becomes a burden and you cannot walk a few blocks without excessive fatigue, and you break out into perspiration easily, and your face flushes, and you grow excited and shaky at the least provocation, and you cannot bear to be crossed in anything, you are in danger; your nerves have given out; you need building up at once! To build up woman's nervous system and during the period of change of life we know of no better medicine than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Here is an illustration. Mrs. Mary L. Koehne, 371 Garfield Avenue, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for years in my family and it never disappoints; so when I felt that I was nearing the change of life I commenced treatment with it. I took in all about six bottles and it did me a great deal of good. It stopped my dizzy spells, pains in my back and the headaches with which I had suffered for months before taking the Compound. I feel that if it had not been for this great medicine for women that I should not have been able to-day. It is splendid for women, old or young, and will surely cure all female disorders."

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick and ailing women to write her for advice. Her great experience is at their service, free of cost.

Truths that Strike Home

Your grocer is honest and—if he cares to do so—can tell you that he knows very little about the bulk coffee he sells you. How can he know, where it originally came from, how it was blended—or with what—or when roasted? If you buy your coffee loose by the pound, how can you expect purity and uniform quality?

LION COFFEE, the LEADER OF ALL PACKAGE COFFEES, is of necessity uniform in quality, strength and flavor. For OVER A QUARTER OF A CENTURY, LION COFFEE has been the standard coffee in millions of homes.

LION COFFEE is carefully packed at our factories, and until opened in your home, has no chance of being adulterated, or of coming in contact with dust, dirt, germs, or unclean hands.

In each package of LION COFFEE you get one full pound of Pure Coffee. Insist upon getting the genuine. (Lion head on every package.)

(Save the Lion-heads for valuable premiums.)

YOU'RE NEEDED

The section traversed by the Missouri, Kansas & Texas Ry. is very comprehensive. From St. Louis, Hannibal or Kansas City to Galveston or San Antonio is a stretch of over one thousand miles of territory, capable of sustaining a population many times that of the present. A thousand industries, soil of various degrees of fertility, a wonderful produce of plants and crops, oil, gas and minerals are to be found. Peopled by eager, pushing, wide-awake citizens who believe in the future of the Southwest and see the virtue of encouraging enterprises of every description and of getting more and better facilities, the opportunity is apparent.

The Southwest is really in need of nothing save people. More men are needed—you're needed. There are vast areas of unimproved land—land not yielding the crops of which it is capable. The same thing in a different way is true of the towns. Few lines of business are adequately represented. There are openings for mills and manufacturing plants, small stores, banks, newspapers and lumber yards. The oil and gas fields of Kansas, Indian Territory and Oklahoma are practically new and offer wonderful opportunities for development along commercial lines.

THE OPPORTUNITY IS NOW

The M. K. & T. has no lands for sale, we are simply interested in the upbuilding of the country. We believe in the Southwest, and know that with its present needs and opportunities, the prospects are brighter and the future more hopeful than in the older and more densely populated States. We want you to investigate conditions and satisfy yourself of the truthfulness of this.

On February 7th and 21st and March 7th and 21st, the M. K. & T. Ry. will sell excursion tickets from St. Louis, Hannibal and Kansas City to Indian Territory, Oklahoma and Central and Eastern Texas, at

You should take advantage of this opportunity to see the Southwest for yourself. We are in possession of all sorts of information valuable alike to the investor and homeseeker. If you are interested, tell us what you want, how much you have to invest and we will gladly furnish the information.

WINTER EATING RUINS STOMACHS.

"Now Is the Time You Need Mi-na," Say Clarke & Co.

Think for a moment of the extra strain upon the stomach in the winter. The hearty food, the late suppers, and the lack of exercise and out door life all weaken and strain the stomach, laying the foundation for poor health and suffering.

Chronic stomach troubles, nervous irritability, and serious bowel and kidney diseases have often dated from a week of extra "good living." Nearly everyone is bothered with more or less headaches and backaches, furred tongue, poor appetite, dry hacking cough, heartburn, spots before the eyes, dizziness or vertigo, sleeplessness, lack of energy, loss of flesh or a general weak, tired feeling. Now is the time Mi-na is needed to repair the ravages and wastes the hearty eating of winter has caused in the stomach and digestive system. This is the only known agent that strengthens the stomach and digestive organs, so they can and will readily digest whatever food is eaten. A Mi-na tablet taken before each meal will remove all irritation, inflammation and congestion in the digestive organs, and so strengthen them that they will extract from the food all that goes to make good rich blood, firm muscle, and a sound, healthy body.

This remarkable remedy costs but 50 cents, and if its use does not restore your full vigor, vitality, and health, Clarke & Co., one of the best known drug firms in this section will refund your money. Unbonded faith like this deserves your confidence.

Public is Aroused.

The public is aroused to a knowledge of the curative merits of that great medicinal tonic, Electric Bitters, for sick stomach, liver and kidneys. Mary H. Walters, of 546 St. Clair Ave., Columbus, O., writes: "For several months, I was given up to die. I had fever and ague, my nerves were wrecked; I could not sleep, and my stomach was so weak, from useless doctors' drugs, that I could not eat. Soon after beginning to take Electric Bitters, I obtained relief, and in a short time I was entirely cured." Guaranteed at Oberdorfer's drug store; price 50c.
